DUNBAR.

DUNBAR, May 12.—On Wednesday evening the pet French poodle of Miss Ruth Long went suddenly mad. Miss Long went for a walk through the fields to catch the dog when the dog followed her and did not seem to act anything unusual, but upon returning to her home the dog became suddenly violent and began to froth at the mouth. The dog was shut up until Mr. Long returned home from work and the dog was then dispatched before any harm was done to anyone. The dog was a great pet of the family and the loss is sorely felt by all.

The Annual Meeting of the Board of Directors of the Foreign Missionary Society Discusses United Effort of All Churches Abroad.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDAL, May 12.—The annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Foreign Missionary Society of the United Brethren in Christ began here today with a large crowd of people.

Dr. W. R. Funk, a former pastor here, and for a number of years at Dayton, Ohio, presided over the meeting. There was prayer by H. D. Butcher, and then a number of messages brought personally from the foreign fields.

The feature of general interest throughout the locality today is the missionary exhibit being made in the church from 2 to 5 o'clock this afternoon. At 2 o'clock there will be informal talks upon the customs in the foreign lands. It will be both interesting and instructive.

Bishop W. N. Bell is presiding today and reports and miscellaneous business have had the call during the forenoon. Bishop T. C. Carter will be in the chair this evening at the 7:30 meeting. L. H. Shuey will deliver prayer and there will be a visitation of the Philippine field with stereoscopic by Rev. J. J. Pace.

Sunday morning and evening there will be services at the various churches as announced in "The Courier" yesterday. At 3 o'clock there will be a young people's rally at the United Brethren Church. Professor F. H. Bennett is presiding and with special music. There will be three addresses, "Why I Go to West Africa," by T. H. L. Smith; "The Hour of Crisis in the Orient," by Rev. J. J. Pace; and "The Message of the Young People," by Dr. H. F. Shuey.

Bishop G. M. Matthews, D. D., of Chicago, called the Friday afternoon session of the Foreign Missionary Board to order, and Dr. J. S. Fulton offered prayer. Bishop T. C. Carter, D. D., of Chattanooga, Tenn., on "The Neglected Commandment," "The Missionary's Duty," and "The Missionary's Life." The report of the results of the mission to carry out Christ's final commandment, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature," both to the church and to the heathen, was then read and some of the glorious results which are noticeable in lands where the Gospel has been proclaimed as Christ commanded. Rev. W. O. Yates, D. D., of Dayton, O., associate editor of Sunday School Literature, followed with an address on "The United Brethren in Christ and the World's Missionary Work." Emphasis was placed on the importance of having an adequate policy for missionary instruction in the Sunday school, with a forecast of the grand results which will follow such instruction in the form of increased interest, prayer, gifts, and personal consecration. An appropriate missionary song was impressively sung by Mrs. W. O. Yates, a member of the Board of Directors.

One of the very interesting and most helpful addresses of the session was delivered by Mrs. J. A. Harford, of Omaha, Nebraska, on "The Conversion of Life Adequate for the Task of World Wide Evangelization." Mrs. Harford is a cultured woman and an able speaker. She is a member of the Board of Directors and also President of the Women's Missionary Association of the United Brethren in Christ.

Rev. J. M. Hols, of Burlington, O., spoke on "The United Brethren in Christ and the World's Missionary Work," pointing out how each local society can be enlisted in missionary prayer and giving, and the splendid results that follow such missionary spirit. Two missionaries from Africa, H. T. Miller and Miss Ella Shunkin, were introduced to the audience and spoke interestingly of their work.

General Secretary Ithael spoke of the splendid donation of Rufus Clark, of Denver, Colo., of over $100,000 to the endowment of the training school at Shere, West Africa, which he founded about 20 years ago.

The Foreign Missionary Board held an inspiring platform meeting the night previous. Three strong addresses were made to an audience that filled the spacious auditorium. After a brief but stirring song service, led by a chorus choir of 50 voices, the meeting closed with the able direction of the popular and able pastor of the church, Rev. C. W. Hendrickson, Bishop W. M. Weekley, D. D., of Kansas City, Mo., introduced Senator Bishop, G. M. Matthews, D. D., of Chicago, who delivered a splendid address on the work of the World's Missionary Conference at Edinburgh, Scotland, last year which he attended as a delegate from his denomination.

The audience was given a fine world picture setting of the aims, plans and results of this great conference. Dr. S. S. Hooper, General Secretary of the Board, also attended this conference and spoke briefly of it to the delight and profit of all present. The principal address of the evening was delivered by Dr. C. W. Brewbaker, of Chambersburg, Pa., on the subject, "The Adequate Response From the Churches of America for the Evangelization of the World." Dr. Brewbaker, who is a profound thinker and an eloquent, enthusiastic speaker, held his audience spellbound for 50 minutes with his masterly address.

After a brief but stirring song service, the audience was given a fine world picture setting of the aims, plans and results of this great conference. Dr. S. S. Hooper, General Secretary of the Board, also attended this conference and spoke briefly of it to the delight and profit of all present. The principal address of the evening was

$3.50 Recipe For Weak Kidneys, Free.

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles,
Backache, Straining, Swelling,
Etc.

STOPS PAIN IN THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS AND BACK.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say good-bye forever to the scalding dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the aches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and thin despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $2.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you absolutely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. B. Robinson, K-127 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail. No money or name needed. But hurry, as I can only send a limited number. You will get it without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

A "JUST IN TIME" FIRE SALE.

Seasonable Goods In Up-to-Date and Fashionable Designs Almost Given Away

We can state with confidence that never before was such an opportunity offered the public to save money. That they appreciate it is evidenced by the increasing daily crowd that there are remarkable bargains among the fast disappearing stocks.

In many cases the goods are without blemishes of any kind—just a slight odor of smoke that will soon pass away with plenty of airing. The efficient work of the firemen confined the fire to a small space, but the smoke and water which were beyond their control spoiled our entire stock for general use.

So large were the accumulations of merchandise that we had gathered for the Spring season that with the great popular demand of the last few days there are still large assortments left. They must go—at the prices we have placed upon them—you would be robbing yourself to stay away.

Attend this great Sale today—you will be astonished to find what a lot your money will buy.

The Girl of My Dreams

A NOVELIZATION OF THE PLAY BY
WILBUR D. NESBIT AND OTTO HAUERBACH
NOVELIZED BY WILBUR D. NESBIT

CHAPTER I.

Harry Swinton hummed a song to himself and then, with a little more speed, into his room.

He had every reason to be happy. Long regarded as a settled bachelor, though young enough to be the sort of chap all the girls were setting their caps for, he felt that this was to be the really great day of his life. Lucy Meddard and her father were coming to visit him; his sister Carolyn was coming home from boarding school especially to play the hostess. The house had been made spick and span for the occasion, the sun was shining, the little birds were singing in the trees of the park, his room was running smoothly and—well, he hadn't a care in the world.

As he took corners in the driveway without slackening speed he murmured:

"Good little busy wagon! You're the capital thing all this!"

In memory, he could see again that day of the summer before when in the same machine he was whirling along a country road. Something happened, the machine skidded, with the usual result.

When Harry came to his senses he was lying on an old-fashioned Quaker sofa, in an old-fashioned Quaker house—but he thought he was in heaven.

Above him bent a Quaker dame, demurely beautiful and distractingly calm. She was bathing his brow with a cloth wrung out of cold water to which some camphor had been added.

"Do they feel better?" she asked, in the softest of tones.

"It depends," he managed to say. "If you're going to stop this because I'm better, I'm going to have a relapse."

Then into the room came a stalwart old Quaker.

"Has the young man recovered, Lucy?" he asked.

"Yes, father," she said. Harry sat up, with an effort.

"I don't know how to thank you, sir," he said. "It was lucky that I went into the ditch right in front of your house."

"With the word 'lucky' he looked meaningfully at Lucy, but that self-possession which did not seem to catch his double meaning.

The result of the accident is not hard to guess. Harry found himself so bumped and bruised that it took a fortnight for him to be well enough to return to his home. And in that fortnight he and Lucy became so well acquainted that it then became necessary for him to run up to see her—a mere matter of a hundred miles—once every week. And now he had lured her father to bring her to visit him and his sister.

He reviewed in his mind the events of the days since the accident. Pleasant thoughts, those, for a young man. They take his mind off the immediate surroundings, however.

Automatically he whirled around another corner—then began doing things with the brake, but too late.

Twenty yards before him appeared another auto. In it sat a couple oblivious to their danger. There was a smash and a crash, a shriek and a yell. And then the three people picked themselves up.

The man in the other auto leaped to his feet and shook his hat at Harry. The lady gathered up her hat into a coil and exclaimed:

"My hat! My beautiful hat!"

Harry followed the direction of her glance, and saw the object of her dismay. A handsome hat of yellow straw, adorned with large red flowers, was hopelessly entangled in the steering gear of his machine.

He extricated it—or what he could of it—and offered it to her. But with a fearful exclamation of despair she refused it.

"Goodness!" shouted her friend. "Why do you go running around with killing and ruining hair hats?"

"My dear countess!" cried the lady. "Not so loud!"

But the countess was not to be calmed. In spite of Harry's efforts to explain matters, he continued his staccato exclamations of wrath and annoyance, until, giving up the idea of straightening matters out, Harry popped into his own machine, skidded just past the other auto, and resumed his home-ward ride. In a moment the countess and the lady were in their seat again, the count wheeling his machine about, and the lady began, "By some definitely and twirling Harry" managed to evade them and at last reached home.

He dashed into the house, eager to change his clothes and be ready to go to the station to meet Mr. Meddard and Lucy. "Pigeon" Williams met him. Pigeon, as he was affectionately called, was a young man who tried his best to be a chum of Harry—for the reason that he was unusually attracted by Harry's sister Carolyn. It was natural that Pigeon should be at Swinton's that morning. He wanted to help Harry have things ready to entertain Lucy and her father, and besides he thought it would cheer Carolyn up to see one of her old friends on her own arrival.

"Is Carolyn here?" Harry asked, as he came in.

"Sure," replied Pigeon. "She got here half an hour ago—just as the dickens because you didn't meet her at the train. Why didn't you? If I knew you weren't going to, of course I could have gone."

"I meant to," Harry replied. "But I had a bit of a smash-up in the park."

"Smash-up? Again?"

"Nothing that amounted to much. Head-on bump into one of those run-about things—run about a day and then blow up. German dignitary in it, with a dashing brunette. No wonder he couldn't see me coming. He had to look at her."

"Didn't hurt them?"

"No. Just knocked the breath out of all of us. And her hat fell off, and my machine chewed it up. Look!"

Harry dug into his pocket and produced the brim of the lady's hat, with a trailing string of red poppies. Pigeon laughed.

"Keep it for a souvenir?" he asked.

"Don't know. The German fellow got mad, and I came away in such a hurry I forgot what I was doing. Stuck the thing in my pocket absent-mindedly, I guess."

"He got mad? No wonder." "I think he's real peeved. When I made my getaway he got his old cook stove into action and tried to follow me. But I escaped."

Harry went into his room and Pigeon sat down.

"How's Carolyn looking?" Harry called to him.

"Fine and dandy. Say, Harry, Pigeon went on maliciously, "the fellow have it in for you?"

"If for me? Why?" asked Harry, in muffled tones, tugging at a collar button.

"They say you're a quitter. You used to be strong for slug parties, and all that, and now you don't care for anything but the country—and a country girl."

"That so?" Harry said, coming out. "Well, let 'em say what they please. I'm for the country—that's where you go for pure air, green fields, natural flowers, and natural girls. Pigeon, I'm through with all this bachelor stuff. No more of the star supper and poker parties for yours truly. I'm ready to quit and be good—if my plans work."

"I think you're dead right, Harry," Pigeon replied, solemnly. "Judging from my own experience. There's nothing in this bachelor life."

"Your experience? Here, Mathews, let's take a clear. Why, you're not even old enough to use a safety razor boy!"

Pigeon blushed boyishly and felt at his tender mustache with an embarrassed guilty expression.

"You're always rubbing it in on a fellow," he complained.

CHAPTER II.

Harry laughed sarcastically, and in the midst of his laugh Carolyn dashed into the room. A jolly, romping girl just at the age when a girl doesn't know whether to keep on being a girl or to consider herself a woman, she paused for a moment at sight of Pigeon, then lost her formality and ran to Harry to greet him.

"Isn't she some girl, though?" Harry cried to Pigeon, with his arms around his sister. "Have to keep my eyes on you, you're getting to be too big and pretty."

"I'm not too big!" pouted Carolyn. "Not a bit—and you couldn't be too pretty," Pigeon earnestly declared.

"I'll have to keep my eye on you, Harry," Carolyn giggled. "Wait until Lucy comes. Do you call her 'thee'?"

"I haven't turned into a whole Quaker yet," Harry answered. "Now you run along and see that this house looks like something."

"You'd better get some one to expurgate this den of yours," Carolyn flashed at him as she left the room. "Lucy and her father may be shocked at some of the things here."

"I'd like to know what there is in here to shock anyone," Harry said to Pigeon.

"Oh, nothing much," Pigeon chuckled. "But maybe that picture of the ballet girl and that figure of the Venus de Milo, and some of the other highly decorative effects are not quite what Lucy has at home."

"Why, those are works of art."

"Here's General Blazes to see you, Harry," called Carolyn from the hallway.

"Come right in, general!" Harry said. General Blazes, pompous, irascible and dignified, was Harry's attorney in several matters having to do with the estate left him by his father. He entered the room as gravely and as impressively as though he were approaching the bench of the United States Supreme court, and said:

"Good morning, boy. Here's—taking a packet from his inside pocket—"here are the deeds, all duly signed and sealed. I believe you will need no further advice from me."

"Thank you, general," Harry said, taking the documents. "That's mighty good of you. I appreciate your assistance in bringing them in yourself."

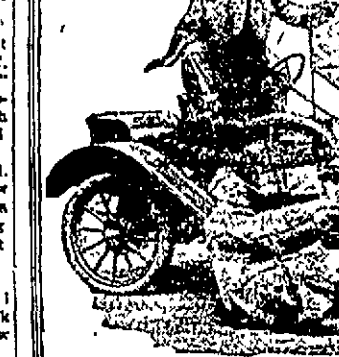

"No trouble at all, I assure you. I was passing on my way to my office."

"Won't you have a little nip of something to strengthen you for the walk?"

"No, thank you. I am rather in haste. I am rather slightly worried about Mrs. Blazes."

"Why—what's happened? What's this address. It just came, so I want to put it away and later give it to her with my own hands. Alas, my poor, poor Lucy!"

"Why—what's happened? What's this address. It just came, so I want to put it away and later give it to her with my own hands. Alas, my poor, poor Lucy!"

"My Hat! My Beautiful Hat!" She cried.

"Worried? Why, I trust she is so and about Lucy?"

"She—she—oh, my poor, poor Lucy!" Primmer wailed, going slowly from the room.

"Well, wouldn't that bump you?" Harry soliloquized. "Convinced that he is evidently allowing his blighted affections to act on his lachrymal glands. Now, looking about the room, I expect I'd better send Venus and the ballet girls to the attic for a much-needed rest."

He was just about to take the ballet girl picture from the wall, when he was startled by an angry argument in the hallway. One voice was that of a woman, another that of the butler, and the third the broken accents of the German girl to whose auto Harry had crashed.

"Great guns!" he exclaimed. "They're trailing me down."

"You!" both cried.

GOOD WORK.

Done Daily in Connellsville—Many Citizens Tell of It.

Nearly every reader has heard of Dean's Kidney Pills. Their good work in Connellsville still continues, and our citizens are constantly adding endorsement by public testimony. No better proof of merit can be had than the experience of friends and neighbors. Read this case:

F. M. Boehlert, 299 East Fairview avenue, Connellsville, Pa., says: "I have great confidence in Dean's Kidney Pills and have found them to be a reliable remedy for disordered kidneys. I suffered from rheumatic pains and a lameness across my back, and the passages of the kidney secretions were irregular. Dean's Kidney Pills acted promptly and the relief obtained was permanent. This remedy has been used by other members of our family for backache and kidney trouble with good results. I have recommended Dean's Kidney Pills on many occasions, and in every case that has come to my knowledge where they have been used, the results have always been satisfactory."

Morgan Beats Southwest Team.

Special to The Courier.

OWINGSDALE, May 12.—Grover Felgus brought his team up Southwest No. 1 team here last evening and was welcomed with but little effort by Montgomery's heavy hitters. Felgus was largely in need of regulars. His team was game to the core and they did fighting as their two lone outfielders were in the last inning and by hard playing. On the other hand Morgan played with but little exertion and had things their own way. Thomas and Kane starred. Thomas landed Gruff's slants for a pair of triples, the last being a pretty home run had he not slipped and ploughed up the landscape. Kane hit a double, Morgan pulled off two neat doubles. Shilred starred for Southwest. Morgan drove Southwest's first pill heavier from the mound and commenced on the second in a lively manner. Morgan held his own brilliantly until the ninth when three time bingles were made off his shoats. The score:

Morgan 6, 1, 1, 1, 1, 5, 1—10 15 2
Southwest 0, 0, 0, 0, 0, 0, 2—2 9 2
Summary—Two bases hits—Kane, Haley, Shilred. Three bases hits—Thomas, Kane. Home run—Haley. Double plays—Kane to Thomas to Pruey; Thomas to Pruey. Hit by pitched ball—Robbins and R. Klingensmith, struck out—by Hatters 7, by Gruff 8, by J. Myers 1. Stolen bases—Morgan 2, Southwest 2. Errors—Meyers. Score—Lefebvre, Time—1:45.

Baseball Notes.

Pittches Moore, Eebee and Rowan are all shooting 'em over for the Quakers in classy fashion.

They call "Ping" Bode of the White Sox a fence-buster, and he looks all of that sure enough.

Jim McGuire, former manager of the Cleveland team, is back on his old job of scouting for the Naps.

The Rochester team, champions of the Eastern League, are right out in front and hustling for another pennant.

Grogg, Grady and Griggs of the Cleveland Naps. Makes you think of a turn in some vaudeville show.

Captain Charley McLaughlin of the Hartford team is a clever ball player. He can play any position on the nine, even to pitching.

John Covaleski, a brother of the famous "Giant Killer," has signed with the San Antonio Texas League.

NEW YORK, May 13.—Baseball ethics secure in the suit for $50,000 damages brought by John M. Ward against Ben Johnson, president of the American League. Ward was once manager of the New York Giants, but quit baseball fifteen years ago to become a lawyer. He bases his claim for damages on the allegation that Johnson referred to him as a "trickster" two years ago when Ward was a candidate for president of the National League. During the trial Ward was a witness and was kept on the stand two days while he was quizzed regarding his ideas on baseball and legal ethics. Ward represented George S. Davis the shortstop who jumped the Chicago White Sox in 1903 to join the New York Giants, but who was sent back to the Chicago team by the national baseball commission. It was shown that the Chicago club was paying Davis $4,000 a year and that the New York club offered him $3,500 and agreed to pay the cost of any legal action in which he might become involved because of his changing his allegiance. Many baseball magnates attended the trial and have closely followed the testimony.

"Why don't you quote those suits as $22.50 values," asked the maker of them, replying to a former advertisement of his "special." Resuming he wrote: "It's just like picking up $5 on the street to the man who invests $17.50 in one of these suits."

The suits are spring weight fabrics in 1911 styles—summer colors.

Fine, dignified suits they are—although not too conservative for young men. The best style that the season has developed is reflected in the garments; and they are hand-tailored throughout. In fact, you could not escape noticing the results of careful and expert workmanship, the smooth, and excellent manner in which the linings are put in.

So, Compared with Other Suits in the City, $22.50 will Buy None Better.

Other Good suits, so assorted that, middle of May though this is, the stock is full, varied, complete and interesting. Prices disregarded the suits comprise what ever is true fashion.
